Franklin Called DEI a Biblical Principle

But later walked that statement back softening his language.

🚨BREAKING: Oklahoma State Superintendent candidate Robert Franklin (R) told debate viewers DEI is a "biblical principle" and he won't stand against it.

He's also pushing "Separation of Church and Hate" — a book that claims the right hijacked Christianity and backs abortion + LGBTQ causes. See less

Supt. Candidate Robert Franklin:

A Wolf in Sheep's Clothing?

This book, that Robert Franklin recommended publicly, is an attack on biblical Christianity and also just about every conservative position.

This book questions Jesus, Faith, Christianity, coming against conservative beliefs of most Oklahomans, and questions true history. Rober's book does not consider Paul's 13 letters as Scripture, is an attack on Biblical Christianity, and just about every deep faith conservative position of Oklahomans.

He said that DEI is a "Biblical principle."
DEI draws from Socialist Marxist theory and promotes "equity" instead of "equality" and "merit". (Equity implies equal outcomes regardless of a person's effort).
It is NOT a Biblical Principle

Franklin Called DEI a Biblical Principle

Later walked statement back softening his language.

Franklin said his comments about inclusion at a recent debate weren't about bringing DEI back into schools. He said they were rooted in a career spent advocating for students with disabilities.

"I want to be clear on that. If someone is saying that he is trying to bring back a DEI agenda, that couldn't be further from the truth," Franklin said. "I have been a special education teacher since 1980. I have worked all of my career. I helped start a nonprofit for individuals with disabilities, and all my work and all of my efforts have been to have people that are underrepresented to be included in the process."

Excuse me sir , your unapologetic disposition was on full display when Anita Hill reminded us of your true character...we should have listened more carefully to her testimony. #anitahill

Franklin Endorsed by Former Democratic State Superintendent Candidate, Craig McVay, Over Democratic Opponent Jennette Marshall, Why?

McVay said Tuesday night he was “not shocked” at the results.

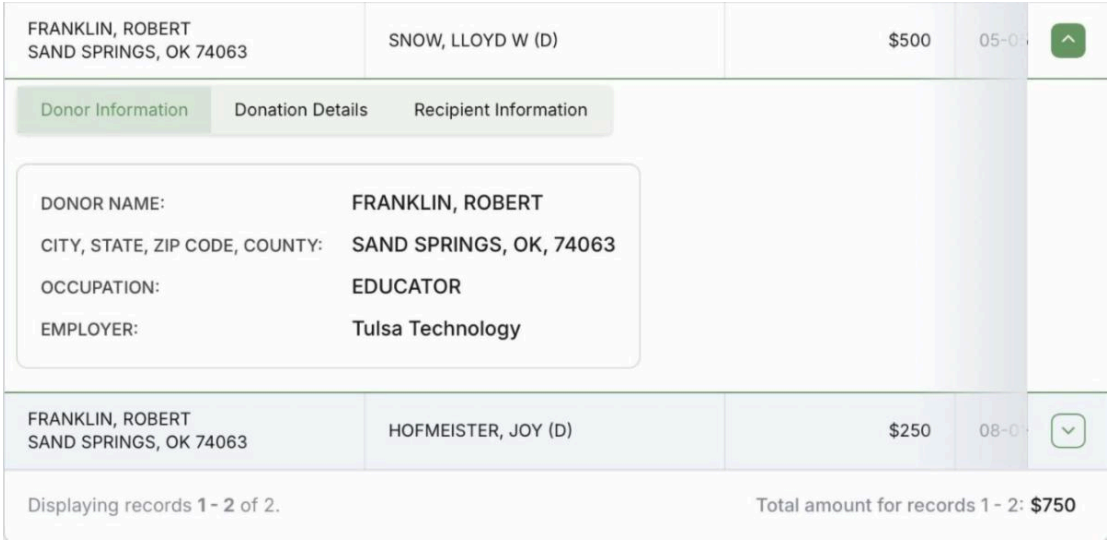

“I think if I had it to do all over again, I wouldn’t have changed a thing,” he said. “I met a ton of people and ran what I thought was a competitive campaign and got beat. Not the first time I’ve lost.”

He said he will endorse Franklin, a Republican and longtime educator, for state superintendent from this point forward.

“I know that’ll disappoint some of the Democrats, but he’s the best man for the job, and I hope he wins in August, and I hope he’s the next state superintendent,” McVay said.
